

Activities In Britain Indicate Cross-Channel Invasion Near

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Great Britain began clearing all non-residents from her barricaded coastal areas today as a conviction gripped the nation that the hour is near for a powerful new blow at Adolf Hitler's European fortress.

Invasion talk was heard everywhere amid cries in both Britain and Russia for speedy opening of a second front.

From every angle new moves appeared directed at invasion, but whether in the Mediterranean, the Balkans or across the English Channel was the Allied war chiefs' secret.

Significant, however, were these developments:

1. Heavy and repeated American air raids on Axis airfields in France—natural targets as a prelude to any new offensive.

2. Declaration of a state of siege in Norway by apparently jittery German occupation authorities.

3. Virtual isolation of Italy by severance of that country's telephone and telegraphic communications with Switzerland, giving rise to the belief that important developments might be in the offing.

(Dispatches from the Swiss border town of Chiasso quoted the Swiss Telegraphic Agency as saying that the situation throughout Italy "remained grave, with possibility of radical changes from one moment to the next.")

4. The British war cabinet was reported in constant session all day yesterday, keeping in direct touch with Prime Minister Churchill in Quebec.

5. The diversion of RAF heavy bomber attacks from German war industries to an all-out attempt to knock Italy out of the war by destroying her industrial facilities.

As the Allies' great aerial offensive roared on, every available plane based in Britain was reported being thrown into the fight—a further indication that an all-out drive might be imminent.

Armed guards and barricades blocked all approaches to certain towns on the British south coast, which was under the biggest ban since the outbreak of the war. But the feeling of nervous expectancy this time is far different than in 1940 after Dunkerque, when a German invasion was expected momentarily.

Civilians in the coastal towns were forbidden to use cameras, binoculars or telescopes.

Four German reconnaissance planes appeared over the south coast early last night, possibly attracted by signs of unusual military activities. One of these was shot down.

In the war office in Whitehall there was a rush of activity, as the war cabinet met and called on technical heads of all the services.

The News Chronicle commented: "There was generally in Whitehall a feeling of urgency and a sense of big events to come."

YANKS SURGE INTO MESSINA

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

Ker-choo! Ker-choo!

That means hay fever time is here and that many sufferers who ordinarily drive into northern Michigan to escape the worst of the hay fever season will not make the trip this year unless they go by train.

Formerly many people from Fayette County hied themselves hence to the northern Michigan area about this time of the year and remained until near frost time.

During recent years various treatments, some of them more or less successful, have been tried and the migration to northern Michigan has decreased.

The ragweed generally gets the blame for the hay fever epidemic, but expert dietitians are now declaring that hay fever can be partly or wholly eliminated if certain diets are followed.

In the meantime, however, frequent "ker-choos" are heard about the streets as the pollen from the ragweed, or other weed, stirs up the sneezes.

How two very small boys who were finding their way about on the farm, were cured after taking a mud bath, has come to my ears.

According to the story the two lively youngsters had watched the hogs wallowing in the mud, so they doffed their clothing and proceeded to do a little wallowing of their own.

When discovered by Dad the pair had a liberal coating of mud from the top of their heads to the ends of their toes.

The "cure" administered is said to have been placing the boys under the spout of the pump and pumping cool water upon them until they were thoroughly relieved of their coat of mud.

I understand the boys have declared no more mud baths for them and they are perfectly willing to take a plunge in the family bathtub instead.

CHILLICOTHE WOMAN NABBED IN NEW YORK

Ten-year Criminal Career as Pickpocket

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Marjorie Long Katenkamp, 29, of Chillicothe, Ohio, should have known better, but then, she was a stranger in town.

Known as "Angel Face," she admits to a 10-year criminal career, six arrests and a one to five year prison term in Cleveland. She told General Sessions Judge George L. Donnellan yesterday that she came here because she heard that picking pockets in New York was a cinch.

In R. H. Macy's Department Store she slipped her deft hand into the purses of six women, police said, but made the mistake of selecting a store detective as one of her intended victims. Judge Donnellan sentenced her to three months in the workhouse on her plea of guilty to petit larceny.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD FOR THEFT OF LIQUOR

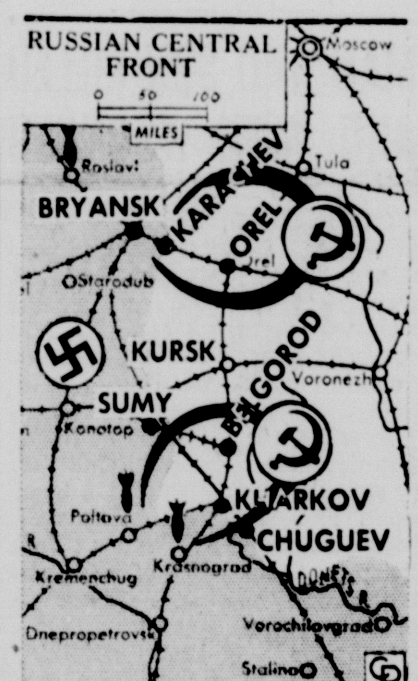

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Police held two suspects today in the theft of 200 cases of liquor valued at $5,000 from nine liquor stores, seven of them in Cleveland, one in Toledo and one in Akron. Officers said one suspect confessed the theft.

RUSSIAN DRIVE IS NOW MOVING AT FAST PACE

KHARKOV FALL EXPECTED

Invaders Pay Heavy Toll in Both Men and Material As They Back Up Slowly

BY HENRY C. CASSIDY
MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The drive on Bryansk, the hinge of the German front southwest of Moscow, is moving at the fastest pace of any of the three current Red army thrusts, the Russian army newspaper Red Star indicated today.

With Soviet troops meeting stiff resistance in the battle for Kharkov, other Russian divisions were moving steadily ahead toward Bryansk supported by the push north from Spas Demensk.

Around Kharkov, Red Star said, the Germans were hurrying large concentrations of reserves backed up by units of from 40 to 50 tanks and air squadrons in an effort to improve their precarious position.

The Germans were meeting with little success in the counter thrusts despite the use of picked troops, Red Star said, and the Soviet army was throwing the Nazis back and inflicting heavy losses.

The Russian troops driving through the shattered German defenses west of Kharkov have approached to within 15 miles of the important Nazi base at Bryansk, Moscow announced in a communique last night.

FLAMING JAP BOMBER PLUNGES INTO GROUP OF YANKS AT WORSHIP

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Aug. 16.—(Delayed)—(AP)—A flaming Japanese bomber crashed into outdoor church services at an Allied base in New Guinea Sunday, killing a chaplain and causing a number of soldier casualties.

The tragedy climaxed a battle in which American fighters shot down 11 enemy bombers—within one minute, a pilot said—and three fighters over Watut Valley west of Salamaua.

ALLIED AIR WAR TO HIT GERMANY FIRST, IS HINT

America Warned, However, That Big Battles Ahead Will Mean Sacrifice

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The nation and the world had from one of President Roosevelt's closest confidants today a pronouncement that the initiative in the global war, now held by the Allies, "is of no value unless followed vigorously with great forces."

Broadly implying the imminence of further grand scale operations against Nazi-held Europe, James F. Byrnes stressed the success of aerial bombardment to date, but said the President had authorized him to say that "the major battles lie ahead of us, not behind us."

Some observers drew an inference from his talk that attack by air, rather than by sea and land forces against numerically superior odds, might continue to be the time being at least. There were indications the decision in this connection might be reached in the Roosevelt-Churchill parleys at Quebec.

Byrnes, director of the Office of War Mobilization and some-times referred to as assistant president, called for greater effort and sacrifice on the home front in order to press home the initiative already gained. In return, he promised a "substantial reduction" in the cost of living necessities and gave assurance of ultimate victory.

Mr. Roosevelt said later information on the long range bombing of the Ploesti oil refineries in Rumania "leads us to believe that the damage to the refineries was greater than we had anticipated and that a large number of

YANKS TAKE NAZI DEATH TRAP, ESCAPE PORT

Here is Messina for which the beaten Axis forces put up such a bitter fight while the hills of the Italian mainland, seen dimly in the background, beckoned invitingly to the weary troops. From Messina, which the American army captured after a bloody battle, the Allies are expected to dash across the narrow strait in their first invasion thrust of Europe proper. Messina, the "escape port", has seen a slaughter of soldiers, mostly Germans, trying to get back to their own country to throw up defenses of Hitler's German fortress.

Rickenbacker Foresees Long War

CONFAB DELAYED TO WORRY AXIS

Secrecy Which Veiled Other Roosevelt - Churchill Meetings Lifted

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

QUEBEC, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Quebec war conference entered its second week today amid strong indications that the unique manner in which it has been handled has been designed deliberately to intensify Axis nervousness over major military developments predicted by President Roosevelt.

Arrangements have been completed to receive the American chief executive here shortly for his sixth formal war council with Prime Minister Churchill.

(Don Iddon, London Daily Mail correspondent, suggested in a dispatch from Quebec that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower might attend the meeting and added that he might already be in Canada, though he said this could not be confirmed.)

In previous meetings of the two United Nations leaders, secrecy has been the rule.

Americans Capture Island In Solomons As New Jap Threat

(By The Associated Press)

American sea-borne forces sharply imperiled Japan's last major strongholds in the Solomon Islands today as Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed that U. S. troops had captured Vella Lavella Island, 50 miles northwest of fallen Munda, in a surprise invasion on Sunday.

Vella Lavella lies in the heart of the enemy's northern Solomon defenses, only 70 miles below the Japanese network of six air bases on and around Bougainville Island at the upper tip of the 600-mile-long Archipelago.

The coup not only threatened Bougainville but jeopardized the Japanese bastion at Vila on Kolombangara Island, immediately above Munda. Japanese garrisons on four intervening islands between Kolombangara and Vella Lavella were in danger of being starved out through lack of communications.

A dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent William Hipple at Admiral William F. Halsey's headquarters in the South Pacific estimated possibly 8,000 Japanese on heavily reinforced Kolombangara had been cut off from supply bases by the invasion of Vella Lavella. He thought it probable that the island would be used to spearhead thrusts on Japanese held Bougainville.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted without confirmation that Japanese naval units sank four large American transports, two cruisers, a destroyer and a landing boat off the island and shot down 28 planes.

On the New Guinea front, MacArthur's headquarters announced, Australian jungle fighters wiped out Japanese forces at Tambu Bay, only six miles south of the enemy air base at Salamaua, killing at least 200 Japanese.

U. S. fighter planes intercepted a force of 25 Japanese dive bombers over the New Guinea battle area and shot down at least 12 at a cost of only one plane, while long-range U. S. Liberators again flew 2,500 miles round trip to blast the enemy oil port of Balikpapan in Borneo.

On the Burma front, Allied warplanes continued their punishing attacks on Japanese troop concentrations, river shipping and other targets.

REPORT IS MADE ON RUSSIAN TRIP

Convinced Germany Must Be Cracked from Within as Air Power Emphasized

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, home from a 55,000-mile inspection tour of the war zones, said today that Italy "is being bombed out of the war" but that "Germany will not even crack before the fall of 1944 at the best," at the present rate of the war's progress.

"Germany still has a vast army, tons of materials, millions engaged in slave labor and she is relieving men from her own forces for additional labor and in addition the Germans are courageous and intelligent," he said at a press conference. "I am not a fanatic on air power, but I firmly believe that Germany must be broken from the inside out, not from the outside in."

He said, "Anything can happen in Italy—any day. I think it will be a complete blowup."

Rickenbacker expressed belief that except for air power the Allies would be unable to capture Italy, and predicted an immediate crumbling within Italy as a result of bombings.

Rickenbacker predicted use of

Germans Begin To Blow Up Installations To Hamper Pursuing Allied Force

AMERICANS USE BAYONETS

Invasion of Italy Believed Next Step With Sicily Cleared of Enemy

By RELMAN MORIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The American Seventh Army surged into Messina today, writing a spectacular finish to the 38-day campaign in Sicily.

(Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent with the British Eighth Army, in a dispatch from the front today said, "The bomb-battered city of Messina has fallen.")

The German radio declared the last German and Italian soldiers had been evacuated to the mainland.

In the scarred streets of the sprawling hillside port of Messina invincible Doughboys of the American Third Division smashed at lingering enemy resistance in hand-to-hand fighting after reaching the outskirts at 8 o'clock last night.

They were the first to reach the city, but eight miles to the south British Commandos, after a devil-may-care landing from the sea in defiance of the enemy's guns on both sides of the strait, had cleared the way for the approach of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army.

American "Long Tom" artillery already had opened fire on the enemy in Italy across the two-mile wide strait.

Fearful of immediate Allied amphibious attacks against the exposed Italian toe, Axis forces were observed carrying out demolitions in the Calabria region across the narrow waters.

This first indication of a possible enemy withdrawal up the Italian peninsula came as British naval batteries built a wall of gunfire around the foot of Italy to within 100 miles of Naples.

The complete occupation of Sicily, the entering wedge in the fortress of Europe, was only a matter of hours as the Americans on the east coast of the

OHIO LIQUOR RATION MAY BE INCREASED

Tip Comes from Reliable Source in Department

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Ohio's bottled liquor ration for the period starting Aug. 23 likely will be increased over the quarter-fifth allowance each four weeks, a liquor department executive intimated today.

The official indicated the state had built up a liquor backlog since rationing was inaugurated June 1 sufficient to warrant a more generous distribution to retail store customers.

This could be achieved by shortening the ration period, heretofore four weeks, or hiking the ration unit if the same purchase period prevails.

Prime Cuts Of Beef Out; No Profit For Farmers

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Choice steaks and prime cuts of beef—the kind that once was obtained in high class restaurants and hotels—will be virtually non-existent this winter, livestock observers predicted today.

The type of beef which used to glamorize the banquet at conventions is definitely on its way out—it isn't profitable for farmers to produce it, and department of agriculture statistics indicate they won't make the attempt.

However—there may be more of the type grading "medium" or "good" to make up the difference.

Aerial Destruction of Milan
Prelude of Future for Italy
Now That Sicily Has Fallen

After Messina—what?

The terrible devastation wrought by British Royal air force bombers during the past few nights in ancient Milan, richest industrial city of Italy and next to Rome the largest metropolis of the country, may well presage its destruction, if indeed it hasn't already been virtually leveled.

That statement may come as a personal shock to a lot of Americans who, like the writer, know Milan well and have loved the old place, especially the fine cathedral which for more than five centuries has kept its doors open to wayfarers from many lands. Still, war is a shocking business at best and this is one of the cities which must pay the price of Mussolini's iniquity.

Milan not only is the center of great war industries, but it lies north of the river Po, which runs across northern Italy from west to east and provides the strategic line of fortifications which the Germans have manned as a defense against any Allied advance from the south. Thus this city, and other unhappy places like neighboring Turin, will remain in German-held territory and be subject to continual bombardment even if the rest of Italy surrenders.

Dispatches from Switzerland say that thousands of Milan's inhabitants have been parading the ruined streets and demanding peace. If they were well south of the Po, such demonstrations might get them what they ask, provided other peace-minded cities joined in. But as things now stand, the Huns are likely to sacrifice all northern Italy in order to delay the surge of the Allies towards victory.

Whether the rest of Italy must suffer a similar fate depends on old Marshal Badoglio's government, which thus far has chosen to play the Boche game. He has been warned by British Premier Churchill that "Italy will be seared and scarred and blackened from one end to the other," unless he surrenders.

Thus far the only thing Badoglio has done to try to save his country has been his unsupported declaration that Rome is an "open city," a statement which his government has the grace to admit can't be expected to save the eternal city unless it's substantiated by proof. Pending the production of such proof, to the complete satisfaction of the Allies, the bombardment of Rome will have to proceed if the exigencies of war demand it. The capital not only is the strategic railway center of all Italy, but it is filled with war industries, not to mention the government and military headquarters.

There are two chances, so it seems to me, that the portion of Italy south of the Po may shortly find succor from the punishment of war.

One is that the peace demonstrations of the people may swell into such proportions that the government will be compelled to surrender to the Allies—and tell the Germans to go hang.

The other is the possibility that now the Germans have withdrawn as many of their troops and as much of their equipment as they can from Sicily, Hitler may release Badoglio from further Nazi bondage and let him save what he can by surrender.

Of course, the fuhrer may insist that Italy hang on until the bloody end. About the only way he could enforce such an edict, however, would be by threatening reprisals against the occupied portion of northern Italy. There's no indication that the Germans intend to try to make any major defense of all Italy against invasion, although they are likely to hold the northern theater so long as possible. Thus, unless Italian troops are ready to stand up against the Allies (which they haven't been

REDECORATING OF WADE STORE IS NEARING END

Few Changes Planned Either
In Personnel or Lines of Merchandise

By next Thursday carpenters and painters will have finished their work on the new Wade shoe store at 209 East Court Street, according to O. O. Wade, the manager.

The entire interior of the store is paneled in walnut. On one side of the ten-foot lobby is a 13-foot mirror which gives the customer a full length view of his costume. The showcases, shelves, cash register desk and other furniture are also paneled in walnut. The floor of the lobby will be carpeted in green.

Ceilings are paneled in squares of cream colored, celotex, which is soundproof and insulated. The lighting fixtures are shielded fluorescent. The furniture will be mahogany colored leather. An X-ray machine also will be installed to facilitate fitting.

The front of the store is finished in cream, green and black vitrolite and the display windows, according to Wade, are so constructed that a pair of shoes can be removed from any place in the window without actually getting into the window.

Wade said approximately the same personnel, lines of merchandise and service will be carried on in the new store. Mrs. Eleanor Lynch has resigned her position at Murphy's to work at the Wade store.

The stockroom and office are also near completion, according to Wade. Announcement of the opening date of the store will be made in the near future.

STOVES TO BE RATIONED SOON

Meeting Will Be Held in Columbus Wednesday
For Dealers

Dealers in stoves throughout this community are interested in the forthcoming rationing of domestic heating and cooking stoves, which becomes effective August 24, and plans for which will be discussed at a meeting to be held at the Fort Hayes Hotel in Columbus, Wednesday, at 1 P. M.

The meeting has been announced by Campbell J. Graf, OPA district fuel rationing officer.

All furniture, hardware and appliance dealers and others handling stoves have been invited to participate in the meeting and obtain information on the stove rationing program.

Under the present stove rationing plan, coal and oil heating stoves are purchased on certificates normally valid for 30 days but these certificates will be invalid after August 23, when the new program becomes effective.

Anyone who obtains a certificate to buy a stove before August 23, but does not purchase his stove by that date, must apply for a certificate under the new order before he will be able to get his stove, OPA officials announced.

Only about fifty percent of the fuel oil users in this region have renewed their home-heating fuel oil rationing certificates according to Charles H. Schreiber, head of the Regional Office at Cleveland.

Ration Boards have mailed fuel oil renewal applications to all consumers who applied last year and coupons have been remitted to users who have filed their applications. All users are urged to place their orders immediately.

doing to any extent in either Tunisia or Sicily), it could gain Hitler little to insist that Badoglio refuse to surrender.

Scott's Scrap Book

Answers To Questions Clarify New Draft Rules

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The War Manpower Commission (WMC) has issued the following series of questions and answers on the new selective service rules:

Q. What are the main purposes of the War Manpower Commission's recently announced plan for the utilization of manpower?

A. It is a plan to hold essential workers on war-useful jobs if that is where they are employed now, to assure the transfer of workers to jobs aiding in the war effort and to supply men needed for the armed forces without cutting production.

Q. What was behind the preparation of the plan?

A. Production of war materials must be stepped up and our armed forces must have the men they need. Care must be taken to make certain that every man is used on the right job, whether it is in production or in the army or the navy.

Q. What are the main features of the program?

A. There are four principal steps: (1) Establishment of a list of critical occupations, covering skills urgently needed in the war effort. (2) Instruction to selective service boards to give greater consideration than ever before to occupational deferment. (3) Establishment of new standards for permitting the transfer of civilian workers from job to job. (4) Extension of the list of non-deferrable activities and occupations providing that all men of military age must transfer from such jobs or be placed first in the list for induction by local boards.

Q. How will the new list of critical occupations and the additions to the list of nondeferrable activities and occupations affect the drafting of fathers?

A. Fathers who are in non-deferrable activities or occupations, regardless of their order numbers, will be the first called for military service. Fathers who transfer to essential occupations and thus release single men who are otherwise eligible for military service also help to decrease the need for drafting fathers.

Q. After October 1, will the occupation of a registrant otherwise qualified for military service be the main factor in determining whether he will be inducted or deferred if his order number is called?

A. Generally speaking, yes. In the cases of men with dependents, the question of hardship to dependents must always be given grave consideration. But as a general proposition, when a registrant is being considered for 1-A classification after October 1, the main question will be whether he can serve his country better in the armed forces or in war production and support of the war effort.

Q. Does the new list of critical occupations replace the list of essential activities and occupations which has previously ruled selective service local boards in considering occupational deferments?

A. No. It simply tells local boards that among the occupations on the previously issued list, the 149 named on the list of critical occupations are those most urgently needed in war industry and supporting civilian activities and that they also require lengthy training and considerable experience. For these reasons, local boards are instructed to give particular and grave consideration to the deferment of registrants having these critically needed skills provided they are engaged in war production or in support of the war effort. However, any registrant qualified for an occupation on the critical list who is not engaged in an essential activity by October 1, 1943, will not be considered for occupational deferment.

Q. What are the chances for occupational deferment of registrants whose jobs are included on this list of essential activities and occupations but not on the list of critical occupations?

A. The basis for all occupational deferment is the registrant must be a "necessary man" in war production or in support of the war effort. The decision in each individual case, subject to the right of appeal, is made by the registrant's local board. The list of "critical occupations," "essential activities and occupations," and "nondeferrable activities and occupations" are issued by the War Manpower Commission to guide the local boards in making these decisions. Local boards also are instructed to obtain all available information from national, state and local levels to assist them in determining whether a registrant is a "necessary man" and particularly to use the facilities of the United States employment service for information as to whether there is a national or local shortage of persons with his qualifications.

Q. What is the status of registrants whose activities and occupations are not included on the "list of essential activities and occupations" or on the "list of nondeferrable activities and occupations"?

A. The inclusion of a registrant's employment on the "list of essential activities and occupations" or its omission from that list and the "list of nondeferrable activities and occupations" does not conclusively determine his occupational status. The question to be determined by his local board, in consultation with the United States Employment Service and other national, state and local agencies, is whether or not the registrant is needed in

MERCHANT MARINE WANTS MORE MEN

Men Up To 50 Years of Age
Being Sought

Despite a steady increase in enlistments during the past three months, the U. S. Maritime Service recruiting office at 204 Traction Building, Cincinnati, is in need of more men to train for sea duty with the Merchant Marines. It was announced Tuesday by Ensign J. C. Jahn, enrolling officer.

Men from 17½ to 35½ are wanted for training as radio operators, ship's clerks, hospital corpsmen, cooks and bakers, apprentice engineers and seamen. Those from 35½ to 50 and men with minor physical defects may be accepted for training as cooks and bakers only.

Ensign Jahn added that stationary and locomotive engineers, graduate mechanical and electrical engineers and experienced machinists are offered engineering commissions after a brief training course. All applicants must apply in person with two birth certificates and a release from the nearest office of the U. S. Employment Service.

his current occupation in support of the war effort. If the board so finds, when the registrant is called by his order number for possible induction into the armed forces, the board can defer him.

Q. Is skill or replaceability the basis for occupational deferment?

A. Both factors are to be considered. A skilled workman is usually more difficult to replace than an unskilled one, but an unskilled worker may be deferred if his induction would interfere with war production. The controlling factor is the immediate need. Local boards are instructed to take into account not only the national shortage in a registrant's skill, but also available replacements for even unskilled workers and current local shortages of skilled or unskilled workers in war supporting industries.

Q. How long is a "necessary man" continued in occupational deferment?

A. Until he can be replaced by someone not qualified for military service. In other cases of men deferred in war production or activities supporting the war effort deferment cannot be granted for a period longer than 6 months at one time, and the deferment can be revoked at any time a registrant's local board finds that a registrant has left the job in which he was deferred or is no longer needed in it. On the other hand, the board can continue the deferment, by not more than 6-month periods, so long as in its judgment the registrant is needed in the war effort and is irreplaceable. Registrants deferred in agriculture, however, come under the Tydings' amendment and are deferred for indefinite period as long as they are found necessary to and regularly engaged in an essential agricultural occupation or endeavor.

Q. What is the status of registrants now engaged in non-deferrable activities or occupations?

A. Men of military age engaged in such activities and occupations, together with idlers, are given no consideration for dependency deferment, except for unusual circumstances such as extreme hardship to dependents. Otherwise, local boards are instructed to reclassify them immediately unless they transfer to other than nondeferrable occupations or register for such transfer with the United States Employment service in which event they will be given 30 days leeway prior to reclassification.

Chamber of Horrors!

World War Correspondents Write Front Line Stories in Headquarters in Bizarre Old Mansion

By DON WHITEHEAD
WITH THE AEF IN SICILY,
Aug. 17.—(P)—Most of the front-line war dispatches for America from this area are written in a Sicilian chamber of horrors.

As yet no correspondent has walked out of the place jibbering more violently than usual, but it may happen any day now—unless we move our workshop from this deserted baronial mansion with the huge empty wine kegs in the cobwebbed back room.

Fortunately, everyone is too busy to look too long upon the four walls of the overhead nightmare that ordinarily would be called a ceiling. The human mind just isn't prepared for the violence of the murals in this room. No one knows the whereabouts of its former inhabitants. No one knows whose tortured mind conceived and then transmitted from brush to wall the scenes about us—but it's a 50-50 bet the pictures on the walls finally drove the inhabitants to seek sanctuary elsewhere.

It couldn't be the scenery. From the little balcony on the second floor, you look out over wheat-yellow fields rolling below purple mountains, and when the air is clear in the early morning or the sun is sinking beyond the rocky hills Mount Etna can be seen towering majestically in the distance.

But this room! The murals are framed in a fancy gingerbread trellis of dirty brown. Swans glide across the dark blue waters. Butterflies flit through a pale blue sky in which fluffy clouds float behind trailing flowers and blooming trees.

On one wall a brilliant peacock stands proudly on a limb. On another, a crane looks out stolidly into the fleecy blue, and birds flit about tree branches in obvious ecstasy. A parrot plainly is mouthing Sicilian obscenities.

But on the fourth wall the artistic soul halted or else rebelled, for across the baby blue sky the clouds and the butterflies and the birds are strung three electric light wires on which are sitting seven blackbirds with white breasts.

And I know they are electric wires, for the pole is mounted with insulators.

On the four sides are arched frames. In one of them is a cut-glass bowl of grapes, apples and oranges. In another is a similar bowl with grapes, two oranges, an apple and a slice of watermelon. The third pictures a dead rabbit and two birds, flung from the trellis in the fourth arched frame hang three dead fish, two birds and a nice big lobster. They are swung on a pink ribbon tied with a bow-knot.

NEW ROADSIDE PARK IS READY FOR USE

Well Now Being Drilled on the Tract

Fayette County's only roadside park, located on the west side of the road just south of the Rock Bridge crossing of Paint Creek, is now completed, except the work of drilling the well, and this is being done by Harry Parrett.

The park has been cleared out, parking places stoned, walks laid out, toilets built and ovens and park tables and benches built.

The County Commissioners and Engineer Robert E. Willis inspected the park Monday afternoon.

GOSPEL SONGS ENJOY POPULAR RADIO REVIVAL

Gospel songs, sometimes called "sawdust hymns," and the more orthodox and stately hymns of the church vie with swing tunes in popularity on the radio today, according to symphony and popular orchestra conductors. Orchestras play them. Soloists and choirs sing them. And still the requests for hymns increase.

Mail from listeners has doubled since pre-war days in the "Hymns of All Churches" program with the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and the "Doxology" still among favorites. Popular music shows the influence of sacred songs in the trend toward such songs as "Coming in on a Wing and a Prayer," "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," "My Cathedral" and "The Bells of Saint Mary's." Another current favorite is Bach's hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God."

"Some more orange juice, please, Mother!"

HERE'S a familiar family scene in a typical American home. There's ample food because our standard of living affords it; there's an inviting variety because America produces it; there's a healthful balance because we in America are educated to the value of good nutrition.

Yet, something else is needed to bring together, from different sections of the country, meat and flour, coffee and sugar, and orange juice. Your railroad is needed. And when Betty pipes up in her shrill voice, "Some more orange juice, please", she's calling indirectly on the railroad that runs through her town.

On the B & O today, we're working mighty hard for Victory. Until that is won, our way of life is threatened. When it is won, you'll find the B & O foremost in promoting in your community the American way of life we all look forward to.

WHILE ROME BURNS
If high military men began bickering over how the war should be run and accusing each other of incompetence, it would not be long before something was done. Public indignation would force correction.

The men responsible for food production are as vital to the war effort as the military men. After the war, the food command will exceed the military command in importance. And yet the country is standing by while disruptive influences of chaotic proportions tear apart a high war agency dealing with food, the OPA. Resigned OPA general manager, Lou Maxon, says: "In my estimation there still is no realistic workable over-all food program. Operation in this vital field has been strictly catch-as-catch-can and OPA moves have often been directed by expediency rather than by any long distance future planning. . . the idea of OPA planning and executing any food program without utilizing to the fullest extent the knowledge and the complete cooperation of the food administrator's people and agriculture is just plain nonsense."

PROGRESS AFTER THE WAR
Sweet are the uses of adversity, and from this grim-visaged World War II will come material, as well as spiritual, benefits to us and mankind.
The crucial problem of war is movement in all its forms. Getting there "fastest" is no idle aphorism. Speed governs every effort on both battle and home fronts. It is a contest against Time. In factory, it is to make two guns shoot where one shot before; in drafting room, to make a tank or plane move faster and farther; in air and on sea and land, the contest is to move men and death-dealing devices to the front and at the front more rapidly than the enemy.
In peace, as in war. Everything in life, said a great philosopher, from marriage to manslaughter, turns on the speed and cost at which men, things and thoughts can be shifted from one place to another. Nor does it take a war to show us that the world is more and more determined to beat Father Time.

Tap any man on the shoulder. Get at his innermost desires, and you'll find that he is trying to get something done quickly so he can move on to something that he would rather be doing.
This urge to beat Time accounts for the ready reception of the automobile, the radio, aviation, the streamliner; of running water in the home, and the vacuum cleaner, the toaster, washing machine and electric refrigerator, the roller screen and automatic stoker; of the appliances in the office, from adding machines to automatic pencil sharpeners; and scores of other evidences of the inexorable Fight Against Time.

In the wake of war's terrible destruction is left a residue of progress, brought about by the life-and-death necessity of more and more rapid movement of thoughts, men and materials. Truly amazing developments in every field of human activity are already here, others rushing headlong. Many of these are still military secrets. Revolutionary changes from war's drafting boards and research laboratories will be applied to the pursuits of peace.

We may look for a new world in the transport of men and things in the air, on and under the sea, and over the ground. The movement of thoughts and ideas has clipped off minutes and hours; radar and electronics, and wartime use of television, for example. Fantastic, likewise, is the time-whipping by chemistry—aluminum, light steels, magnesium; unbreakable glass, unburnable wood shoes without leather, window screens without wire, dehydrated food, pre-fabricated shelter, clothing from casein. And already we are permitted to hear something of the astonishing contributions of war medicine to the conquest of Time.

This surge forward in life's comforts and conveniences will not be on tap the day after armistice. It will call for effort, for the sustained pressure of restless promoters and managers. To capitalize fully on war's inventions and discoveries for peace, men will be needed. Help wanted! will be the order of the hour—men with the will to apply, the energy to organize, and the eagerness to risk their dollars.

America, postwar, will present a business-arena in which the finest of human capacities will be sifted out and set to constructive and reconstructive tasks. And American business will respond with a spirit of "going ahead."

SPEEDIER AND SPEEDIER

Aviation people are agog about a new fighting plane which is said to be faster than any other aircraft ever built. When it flashes across an airfield it is out of sight in 15 seconds. Observers talk of 700 miles an hour, or more. It has a Rolls-Royce engine with a four-bladed propeller, and rates 1,500 horsepower. It must be not only the fastest plane but the fastest vehicle of any kind yet made by man. And doubtless the limit of mechanical locomotion is not reached yet.

It seems amusing now when, anyone recalls speed estimates made in the early days of aviation. It is said to have been soberly declared by some scientific men, about 40 years ago, that 35 miles an hour would be the limit for human flight.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINETT

(First of two articles on battle-field medicine.)

WASHINGTON—In the United States Army medical department's files here is being written one of the staggering stories of this war—the almost unbelievable fact that 97.5 percent of our battle-wounded live to be discharged as "recovered" or to fight again.

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon of the Army, says this is due to the improved technique in medicine and surgery, to sulfa drugs and such, to the competence and resourcefulness of the World War II doctor, but that is only part of the story.

"Our record in saving lives of wounded men is, in great part, due to the excellence of our chain of evacuation from front to rear," he says. "The medical corps man is a fundamental link in that chain." He might have said the fundamental link. It may be sensational news that more than 18,000 wounded were flown by plane from the battlefields of Tunisia to base hospitals—that thousands more are being flown out of Sicily today—but very few of them would have lived to be evacuated if it hadn't been for the men with the scarlet and white brassards who go with each company wherever the battle is thickest.

When an assault company moves up to attack, two unarmed medical department soldiers go along, to live, eat, sleep, march and sometimes die with them.

The action has started. A man is struck. Within a few minutes, the company aid man has run or crawled to his side. First aid, so vital to preserving life, is swiftly administered. The wounded man is made as comfortable as possible, and often his gun stuck bayonet-first into the ground to mark him for the litter bearers.

Almost as soon as the company aid man dashes off to help other wounded, the stretcher bearers move in. They take the wounded swiftly to the battalion aid station—a few hundred yards from the fighting. At the aid station, the men get their first real "doctoring"—sometimes blood plasma. If surgery is vital, it is performed there.

In some instances, minor wounds are treated so quickly that men may be back with their companies a few hours after they are wounded. From there, wounded are carried to collecting stations by ambulances or jeeps, and from there to mobile evacuation hospitals—those tent cities where so many miracles of medicine and surgery are performed.

Frequently, says the medical department, the men are in these hospitals within an hour or two after they are wounded.

Treatments for Hay Fever

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

I NOTICED in the column yesterday the annual return of our old enemy, hay fever. It is about as inevitable as anything can be and the date is August 15th, or thereabouts.

It is estimated that 10 per cent at least of the entire population is susceptible to the malady. What advice can be given these people as to its management and treatment?

I believe that feasible and helpful treatments come under these five heads:

Hay Fever Treatments

1. A vacation to a non-hay-fever region for the duration. Among the reliable spots are the country around Duluth, Minnesota, and the White Mountains and California.
2. Fitting up your bedroom with a pollen filter and air conditioner in the window. I gave a list of the firms manufacturing these devices in the column a few weeks ago.
3. Pre-seasonal Vaccination.—This method of prevention is becoming more and more exact and successful. Whereas a few years ago I reported that only about 25 per cent of these vaccinations were successful, I now believe that in experienced hands the chances of successful prevention are close to 75 per cent of those who try it.

Psychology and Medicines

4. Psychology.—I think this is a very important item and one that certainly should not be left out. Most people can stand the disagreeable features of life if they know what it is they are going to have to stand. I think the hay fever victim should realize that no matter what he does—pollen vaccines or what—he is never going to be permanently cured. His affliction is going to come back on him annually, or else he has to take preventive shots annually. The trouble is going to last approximately from August 15 until October 1.

Psychology and Medicines

5. Medicines.—There are two kinds of medicines that give some relief. One kind is taken either by mouth or hypodermically. And the other is local application to the nose or eyes. The medicines that give most relief constitutionally are adrenalin (or epinephrine), ephedrine and benzedrine. Adrenalin is most useful when asthma supervenes, as it does with most people towards the end of the season. It would, perhaps, be wise to save it for that time. Ephedrine acts in much the same way, but is not usually so hard on the patient. (Adrenalin makes one very nervous.) Benzedrine relaxes the bronchial tubes, and relieves congestion. It can be taken by mouth.

All of these can be sprayed or inhaled into the nose and will give temporary relief to the congestion. Another good preparation of this sort is neo-synephrine, sprayed in the nose. For the eyes, hot boric acid solution dropped in the eyes or used as a compress. Estivin is a preparation that has had a long, popular career of success, dropped in the eyes three or four times a day.

tober 1. It will never kill him. In fact, it probably promotes longevity.

That postponed the fishing trip with Marty and the anticipated visit at the trailer camp. It also meant that, as Martin did not come to see the boy when he was at play on the beach, Karen did not see Martin, either.

This, she decided, was just as well.

Besides, the beach was no longer quite as pleasant a place to be as it had been. There were new curfew regulations restricting anyone from being on the beach, even the private ones, after sundown. The sea itself was full of oil that was washed up onto the shore, staining one's feet and clothing and bringing grim reminder that, as Marty had expressed it, there were more boats being sunk than could be replaced. Sometimes there was other refuse: broken bits of wood and the like, fragments of crude rubber. At one time a bunch of bananas floated in to repose against the breakwater near the bathhouse and at another time Karen saw the police rolling up some tires that had ridden the waves.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. K. E.—Is a rheumatic heart with mitral stenosis serious? Would the condition mean that a patient would have to live pretty much between a bed and a chair for the rest of his life?

Answer: Rheumatic heart and mitral stenosis are serious, but by no means require such rigid restriction of activity as you mention. During the stage of compensation, which lasts to forty, fifty or sixty years, the patients carry on an active business, have babies and bring up a family.

J. R. J.—Is catarrhal deafness curable? Has any progress been made with the sulfa drugs in treating catarrhal deafness?

Answer: Catarrhal deafness is in nearly all cases progressive. Sometimes a special operation gives some relief. The sulfa drugs are of no value in this condition.

Leave My Heart Alone

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

DURING THE weeks that followed that night when she and Martin had visited the tower, the night when she had introduced the two men, Paul and Martin, Karen was to keep on asking herself what Fate was up to. She had to blame someone, so now that the moon was barred, it might as well be Fate. It was something that kept throwing her and Martin Haliday together, not just into accidental meetings, but into each other's arms!

She could not believe that it was a mere physical attraction. Martin's attraction for her was not physical. Paul was far more handsome and attractive in that appeal. She admired Martin's character, respected his mind, agreed with much of his philosophy. But that was not enough to make her thrill at the slightest touch from him, to be drawn toward him as if by a strong magnet, to experience the oneness of that suspended moment they had shared together in the tower.

She had never responded in any such way to Paul. Had he found a difference when he had kissed her? Was it just that there was a difference, therefore a novelty. But no, that made that moment, that first kiss, cheap, rendering them so meaningless that erasure should not be difficult. And although she had decided the only thing to do was to forget that anything had happened, Karen found that to forget was the one thing she could not do.

Of course she did not go on remembering all the time. She was much too busy, too occupied now for that. There were the holidays, which were much more demanding this year with a little boy in the big house and the feeling that perhaps this might be the last truly joyous Christmas and happy New Year for the duration. And then, after the holidays were over Buffy did manage to "catch" something; he had to be kept in bed for ten days and watched carefully for an even longer period.

That postponed the fishing trip with Marty and the anticipated visit at the trailer camp. It also meant that, as Martin did not come to see the boy when he was at play on the beach, Karen did not see Martin, either.

Besides, the beach was no longer quite as pleasant a place to be as it had been. There were new curfew regulations restricting anyone from being on the beach, even the private ones, after sundown. The sea itself was full of oil that was washed up onto the shore, staining one's feet and clothing and bringing grim reminder that, as Marty had expressed it, there were more boats being sunk than could be replaced. Sometimes there was other refuse: broken bits of wood and the like, fragments of crude rubber. At one time a bunch of bananas floated in to repose against the breakwater near the bathhouse and at another time Karen saw the police rolling up some tires that had ridden the waves.

Grimmest of all was a lifeboat, now anchored near the city dock. It was charred and burned, and full of bullet holes. The submarine that had sunk that freighter had fired on the men as they had tried to row away. Often one could see big clouds of dark smoke, lasting for hours, on the brim of the horizon, meaning that another ship was sinking slowly to its deep grave. There was one sinking within a few miles of shore, a sight that caught at one's throat and brought the sting of tears to the eyes as crowds gathered for miles to witness that slow destruction. Much of its cargo was saved, but there were men whose flesh was horribly blackened from the explosion and the blistering oil, whose suffering and courage no one, having seen, could ever forget.

This was war, although as yet there were many people living far from the coast who had not awakened to this fact. There was talk of gasoline rationing for the eastern seaboard; there would be sugar rationing books and, later, other commodities, as the government struggled with the problem of keeping enough for all and maintaining ceiling prices that would prevent inflation. People were buying War Bonds and Stamps, and longer for defense, but with the hope of a future offensive. The winter resort that had been a playground for the idle and rich was overrun with boys in khaki.

"They're so young these boys, even the ones with wings," Karen protested. Their bright, young, eager faces twisted her heart; their plucky cheer and reckless courage were dominant, but it was difficult to meet it with responding warmth when one realized that they did not know the teachers of the enemy, they must face, that they would be sent to the farthest, smallest, most uncivilized corners of the globe—and that many of them would never come back.

Karen wondered again what Martin would do, what part he would seek. She had not asked him, although she had wanted to. It was unthinkable that he would not somehow do his part. She admired him far too much in other ways to discredit him in this. He might, of course, be waiting to be drafted. If so, it might not be long before he would have to go away. Since she wanted him to be in things, it was a contradiction not to want this to happen. But everything was a contradiction these days, the world itself, madly trying to kill off its peoples and its civilization and denounce its faiths. So that it was no wonder Karen's little world should be off balance.

Outwardly it remained in some ways the same; things were, on the surface, the same between herself and Paul, although she knew they were not underneath. They were not the same within herself, not just because of Martin, although partly that, if she would be entirely honest. She was certain they were not the same within Paul, not because he behaved any differently toward her, but because he was too careful to be the same.

She did not know whether he was seeing, Eva Parks or not, or how Eva was making out in her attempt to win him away from Karen. The way time was flying spring would be upon them all, maybe too soon. But there seemed nothing to do except wait for spring and for whatever it might bring with it.

Karen still wore the gorgeous ring on the right finger of her left hand. She would not take it off unless Paul asked for it. She would wear another, a ring of sapphires and diamonds, if their wedding took place in the spring. She would not, dared not, let herself think otherwise, for surely by then everything somehow would have been straightened out.

It was a conversation about Martin that led unreasonably to another topic that might be the beginning of that "straightening out," at least so Karen hoped. She had felt all along that if only Paul would tell her about Eva it would help. Maybe she was inconsistent, femininely so, in not telling Paul in exchange about Martin. But since there had been so little—one kiss—she shared a moment—and even that was all over and done with, except in Karen's thoughts.

She was thinking about Martin, wondering when she would see him again, if ever, as maybe he already had hitched his trailer onto his ridiculous little car and had driven out of her world, although surely he would not do that without coming to say goodbye to Buffy, when Paul mentioned his name.

"Whatever became of that fellow who lived in a trailer camp, that friend of yours and Buffy's?" Paul asked. It was a natural enough question. Karen had wondered why, having met Marty that night, Paul never had expressed any further interest or curiosity in him. Yet it startled her, maybe due to her conscience again.

"What makes you ask? I suppose she's still living in his camp. Neither Buffy nor I have seen him since the night he was here." Why, that had been more than a month ago!

"Oh, I just wondered," Paul sounded as if that had been his only reason. Then he added, "He was a queer duck. Sort of a Communist or some such, I gathered. Maybe worse than that."

"What do you mean?" Karen was angry at herself for resenting Paul's superior attitude, when he actually knew so little about Martin.

"Well, he might be one of many things these days. You have to be very careful whom you befriend. The country and this particular small community are seething with people who would like to make trouble, whose background is very vague."

"If you mean that Martin might be a fifth columnist of some kind or a saboteur, that's ridiculous!" Karen felt that she was on sure ground there.

"I don't think so," Paul sounded just as firm. "In fact, I'm pretty sure or I wouldn't say what I'm going to say."

Radio Dicks Really Cop the Dough

Crime does pay—for the people who prove it doesn't.

Take your favorite radio mystery program—the one with the screams in the night, the stab in the back, the poison pool, the six assorted murders, and the mocking villain who is always tracked to earth a scant two minutes before the commercial.

The villain may get it in the neck—but he gets it in the pocket-book, too. And the radio detective who delivers those sermons on the meagre profits in crime is likely to think it over in a Park Avenue penthouse.

Les Damon could tell you about that. His sophisticated sibilants as the unperturbed "Thin Man" who fattens on the dirty deeds of the underworld net him $20,000 a year. Damon doubles in washboard weepers—the tearjerking serials that flood the daytime air—and his total take, says his press agent, is $50,000 a year.

Damon is proof enough that the art of crime detection, practiced in 17 network shows a week has become big business. But other robber chasers are said to do almost as well. Jay Jostyn, as "Mr. District Attorney," always gets his man and from $25,000 to $40,000 a year for that and other achievements.

Raymond Edward Johnson, the voice behind the squeaking door in the "Inner Sanctum," is believed to be in the same class—as are Claudia Morgan, the Mrs. Thin Man, and Santos Ortega, whose deep voice as "Nero Wolfe" descends right to the pits of crime. Ted de Corsia, who specializes in both dumb cops (as Sgt. Velie in "Ellery Queen") and villains, is another whose paycheck disproves all they teach in reform school.

It takes time to prove that crime doesn't pay—and so the manufacturers of pills for pale people and other peppers-up of the body basic hand over huge sums to the major networks for the opportunity. Radio time for a half-hour chill program runs up to $13,000. For 25 minutes on 115 stations, the powers behind "Crime Doctor" provide a $12,000 medication for CBS every week. Costs depend on the number of stations involved, but networks can usually count on at least $5,000 every time a radio dick goes on the air.

The majority of "whodunits" prove highly successful in luring palpitating listeners to the loud speakers. The Cooperative Analysis of Broadcasting which telephones listeners in key cities to find out who is listening to what, says that two-thirds as many people who tune in to the top air shows like Bob Hope and Fibber McGee are on hand when "Mr. District Attorney" goes a-hunting.

In an average listening month, "Ellery Queen," the "Thin Man" and "Mr. and Mrs. North" nab the evil-doers, through 15 of every 100 radio sets where they can be heard.

The most popular shows are lucky to break 30.

What makes a good mystery show in radio is a good mystery in itself. Producers say there's no set pattern guaranteed to tingle the public spine. Some programs are built around a basic character—like Sherlock Holmes, Bulldog Drummond, and the old dime-thriller king Nick Carter—whose catches week after week are enough to fill a Sing Sing in a year. In other shows, like "Suspense" and "Inner Sanctum," there's a different set of goodies and baddies every week.

Whatever the style of program, however, two things are always constant. Whether the vile deed is done by a hatchet or a poison pellet, virtue—and the income tax collector—always triumph in the end.

Surprise Party Honors Wilma Jane Summers

Miss Wilma Jane Summers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Summers, was pleasantly surprised, Monday evening, when a group of young people sponsored a surprise party in honor of her eighteenth birthday. The party was held at the Isaly Dairy Store. The store was attractively decorated in a patriotic color scheme with the red, white and blue motif carried out in the appointments and decorations. One long table was centered with a nicely decorated cake, which was the center of admiration of all those present. Prettily arranged vases of cut garden flowers were also placed at vantage points throughout the store. The attractive guest of honor opened her many lovely gifts and made response in her most winsome manner. Those present for a most delightful evening of surprises were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hays, daughter, Shirley Sue, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Christopher, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Cook, Mrs. Kenneth Peart, Miss Wilma Howe, Mr. Howard Ellis, Miss Billy Toops, Miss Mae Knox, Mrs. Albert Summers, Mr. Robert Summers, Mr. and Mrs. George Pennyl and Miss Nell Tillet.

Home Canning Classified Vital War Industry

Have you ever noticed the garbage trucks moving through the city streets? Not just their mere existence—they're on duty all the time—but have you observed the large amount of food they carry away daily?

Government figures show that 15 percent of the food you buy is wasted—that one-quarter of the garbage during the month of August is composed of vegetable greens. Annually Mr. and Mrs. America waste 300 pounds of food per person—and that's pure unadulterated WASTE, not spoiled, unusable food.

Did you know that agricultural experts advise storing bread in the ice box during these August months? Bread molds thrive in August. All vegetables should be kept in the refrigerator constantly in tight containers.

Home canning can now be classified as a major war industry. There is now an army of some 25 million home canners serviced by 20 million Victory gardens. But a hidden danger lives in home canning unless it is done under scientific conditions. The enemy is the bacillus 'botulism, a spore with a Pearl Harbor mind.

This bacillus is present in the soil and is transferred from the soil to food products. It germinates only in the absence of air; therefore the airless interior of a sealed can or glass jar is the ideal condition for its growth and production of toxins in the food.

However, the spores can be destroyed by sustained high temperature. Housewives who can use steam pressure cookers can can with safety.

Although for such acid foods as fruits and tomatoes, rhubarb and pickled beets, the boiling-water-bath method of canning is safe, you must realize the importance of the processing of corn, beans, peas and other non-acid vegetables and meats under steam pressure.

There are several practical solutions to the danger of botulism poisoning. One is never to eat home canned non-acid foods processed without steam pressure cooker unless they are boiled for at least 15 minutes after removing from the container.

Home canners are also warned about the use of preservatives. Experts state that the use of 'sallyclic acid, sodium benzoate and canning powders' should not be substituted for the more efficacious processes of sterilization by heat.

War Workers by Day - Attractive In the Evening

Women and young girls employed in war industry in Washington C. H. and Fayette County have found that the nature of their job prevents femininity during working hours. Overalls and hair nets are necessary and often prove unattractive. Smudges on face, arms and hands may not help, either, even though they may be badges of honor in helping toward victory.

After hours, however, the smart girl war-worker will once more look and be as prettily feminine as ever. For although a famous actress once said she couldn't be Biddy in the morning and play Lady Macbeth at night, nevertheless American women war workers are proving that they can make the transition from war work to home and social activities each day as a matter of course. A bath, change of clothes and they are transformed from laborers to attractive and companionable ladies.

In keeping all-over daintiness, care of the hair is particularly important. Despite protective caps, the hair captures and holds dust and odors. For these reasons, and particularly in summer when there is perspiration, shampoos should be frequent. Nightly brushing will remove some of the loose dust and give gloss to the locks, but it takes a good soap and water washing to cleanse the scalp and keep the hair shining and free from odor. For girls who go dancing, hair that is clean and sweet may often win more partners than the knowledge of the latest steps.

AIRCRAFT CARRIER TO BE SHANGRI-LA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—(AP)—There will be a Shangri-La official in the United States fleet.

The navy announced today that the name U.S.S. Shangri-La has been assigned to a new aircraft carrier under construction at the U. S. Navy Yard, Portsmouth, Va.

The name came from Roosevelt's facetious designation of the fictional city as the base from which the Doolittle raiders flew to bomb Tokyo.

POET'S CORNER

INBORN

Some like the city streets,
Brick-walled around;
But I like a road
That's outward bound.

Some like the clamor
And moil of the mart;
But I find no warmth there,
Of fire or heart.

Some like the din
Of steam and wheel;
But I like the soft loam
Under-heel.

Each to his pleasure
Will abide...
But mine is the peace
Of the country-side.

—FRANK GRUBBS.

PRIDE
Pride goes before a fall they say,
But it's better to fall
Than have no pride at all.

Pride makes us work with will,
But then,
It also joy can kill,
Or hearts with sorrow fill.

Pride can be good or bad, so watch,
Have kind that makes you glad,
Not kind that makes you sad.
May M. Duffee

OPEN THE DOOR

Open the door and let me go
Where the quickening breezes blow;
Where green leaf and sheltering
bough,
Cool the weary toiler's brow.

Open the door and let me be
Like the soaring eagle free...
Free to wander where I will,
Over meadow-land and hill.

Open the door and let me sip
Of the clover's honey'd drip;
Let me go where lock and door
Will not hold me any more.

Open the door. I cannot bide
Where the towering roof-trees hide
Sun and star and ribbon'd way...
Open the door... I would not stay.

REQUIESCAT

When the silver bell has rung
And I'm numbered with the dead;
Let no panoply of woe
Be uplifted overhead;
Let me lie in slum'rous ease,
Undisturbed of joy or ill;
God has brewed the wine of death
And my soul would drink its fill.

Wrap the winding sheet around...
Snuff the candle at my bier;
Let me go to meet my God,
Unrestrained of grief or tear;
Richer dower none may have,
Tho' it lacks of song and bloom,
Death confers a wider range
Than the confines of the tomb.

Let me lie in slum'rous ease,
Unremembering of pain—
Till the bright eternal spark
Kindles in my soul again.

Brooklyn Youth Movement Gets Win Over Mort Cooper

By JUDSON BAILEY
(By The Associated Press)
The transformation of the Brooklyn Dodgers from an old men's club to a youths' society is going on from day to day and in spite of the ridicule that has been heaped upon Branch Rickey for his trading, the changes are showing results.

How different the Dodgers look from the good old days can be exemplified in one sentence: They had outfielder Frenchy Bordagaray playing third base last night.

But in beating the world champion St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 they also had a new first baseman, young Howard Schultz, a 6 feet 6 1/2 inch bean pole, who handled 15 fielding chances successfully and contributed a double and a single to Brooklyn's attack on Mort Cooper and two other hurlers.

Afterward Rickey announced acquisition of three more youths, 21-year-old Harold Gregg and 18-year-old Rex Barney, pitchers from Montreal, in exchange for Max Canon and John Barkley, and 17-year-old catcher Joe Siskovic, fresh from a Brooklyn tryout camp.

The Cincinnati Reds captured their fifth triumph in three days by overthrowing the New York Giants 5-2 behind Johnny Vander Meer's eight-hit hurling and maintained their hold on second place.

In the other National League game Johnny Gee pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-1 decision over the Boston Braves and the Philadelphia Phillies nosed out the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in a night game with Schoolboy Rowe allowing only five safeties in gaining his 11th victory.

The New York Yankees, leading the American League, walked over Chicago White Sox 7-0 with Hank Borowy pitching four-hit ball.

The Washington Senators outslugged the Cleveland Indians to win 6-3 for Wilfred Lefebvre, the one-time Boston Red Sox hurler.

In the only other major league encounter scheduled the Boston Red Sox rode roughshod over the St. Louis Browns 9-0 to give Louis (Bobo) Newsom another defeat, his seventh unsuccessful start since coming into the American League after rebellion among the Dodgers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—They're billing Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom around here now as "the glamour boy of the hoi polloi". One of the local soda shoppes threw him a "guest night" the other evening and Abe Attell, the old feather-weight flailer, was asked to speak a piece. "Y'know, Maxie," Abe began, "I pray for you every night". "Why, Abe?" Maxie wanted to know. "Because, if anything should happen to you, then I'd be the ugliest man in the fight game". Rudy York puts 30 birthday candles on the cake today... and probably will celebrate by slapping some poor pitcher's ears off...

Fifth in Row Won by Reds With Vandy

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds end a pleasant sojourn in the Bronx today playing the last of four games against the New York Giants.

Already the Reds have won three, yesterday they chalked up their fifth victory in a row by downing the Giants 5 to 2.

Behind eight-hit pitching by Johnny Vander Meer, the Reds played errorless in the field and did their hitting when it counted.

The issue was settled in the first inning when Cincinnati scored three runs off starting pitcher Johnny Wittig. Bert Haas, who has been playing superb baseball since he was moved to centerfield, hit a single, Frank McCormick did likewise.

Eric Tipton walked, and little Steve Mesner hit a base-clearing double. Mesner was thrown out attempting to stretch the hit into a triple.

The Reds' infield hung up a pair of double plays for a season total of 135.

Ken Chase, a former American League portside, will pitch for the Giants today against Clyde Shoun or Ray Starr.

Cudahy Team Breaks Even In 2 Games

The Cudahy Packers split a doubleheader Monday night in the softball games at Wilson Field, first winning from Dot Food by a score of 12 to 2 and then losing to the API in an exhibition game, 5 to 4.

Cudahys ran away with the first game, the regular league scheduled game, as they had scored eleven runs before Dots got their two in the sixth. Another run for Cudahys in the seventh made their total 12.

Speakman of Cudahys and Harper of Dots led the hitting with one for one.

In the second game, which proved to be the better of the two as it was closer, found Cudahys in the lead 3-2 at the end of the third inning. However, in the fourth, the API sent another run across to tie up the score. In the first half of the seventh, the API scored their fourth run to take the lead.

During the last half of the seventh, Cudahys got one man on first base but he was called out after two outs had already been made trying to get back on base after leading off. Cudahys protested the decision and as they were playing for the enjoyment only, API allowed them a fourth out. The man then remained on first.

Speakman, the first man up after the third out, hit a long triple scoring George who was on first for the tying run. Speakman was left on third. In the eighth inning Dabe hit a long triple for the API and scored the winning run after Penrod got on base on an error. The API held Cudahy's down during the last half so they won the game.

George of Cudahys and Dabe of the API led the hitting with two for three.

Monday's games were the last games for Cudahy this season.

Tuesday, Albers will meet the Methodists for the first game of the evening at 7 P. M. and Moore's Store will play the Fayette Grange for the second game at 8:30 P. M. On Wednesday night following the Presbyterians-Moore game at 7 P. M., the Fayette Grange will play a special game with the 98th Aviation Squadron, a colored ball club, from Patterson Field.

Senator Abbe Fans To Buy Grave Marker

Not since the days of Major Mallow have the followers of the sport of harness racing had a horse like Senator Abbe whose career they could follow with such pride.

True, there have been many good horse go out from Washington C. H., but none of them were in the class with Senator Abbe, who like Major Mallow, met the best in the country. Both held national records, and while Senator Abbe campaigned on the big time, Major Mallow was the king pin of the half-mile tracks although he met and beat the best of them on the mile ovals.

When Senator Abbe died, he was buried on a knoll in the centerfield of the Fair Ground track here. There today are the tombs of two of this horse-loving country's greatest horses—Major Mallow and Bobby Burns, remembered more as a sire of great race horses than for his own achievements.

Today, Senator Abbe is buried dead in the harness at the finish of his last victorious heat at Xenia two weeks ago, race fans of the three neighboring counties—Clinton, Greene and Fayette—were sad. For, although Senator Abbe was bred and trained in Clinton County, the fans of the other two felt a secondary interest in him. They had seen him race over their own tracks and they had followed his career at others.

Today, Senator Abbe is buried at the highest point of the infield of the Clinton County Fair-ground and the race fans of the county have contributed $80 for a marker for his grave. The greatest racing pacer with a mark of 1:58 1/4 will long remain as a symbol of equine greatness, an inspiration, and his tomb a shrine for horse lovers of this county as well as his native Clinton County.

This, Knox told his press conference, is even worse than the loss of the ships because there is no way to replace an experienced commander.

Knox recalled that when U-boat operations were at their height he had estimated the Germans had 400 to 500 submarines. This included, he said, many in reserve which were employed for training in the Baltic Sea.

The rate of destruction of one-a-day, he said, was believed to exceed the German rate of production.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals and Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox are holding determinedly onto the batting leadership of the two major leagues.

During the last week Appling, veteran shortstop passed the 2,000 hit mark coveted by most long-time players in the major leagues and raised his batting average three points to .336 to continue nine points in front of rookie Dick Wakefield of Detroit at the top of the American League.

In the National League Musial, star outfielder of the world champion Cardinals, also boosted his average eight points to .353 and maintained a big advantage over his closest rival, Billy Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who came out of his slump sufficiently to gain seven points and a .325 percentage.

Much of the interest in the senior circuit, however, centered on the 27-game batting streak of Harry Walker of the Cardinals, who failed to make the select society of top hitters by one point.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—AP—Grains advanced today under the leadership of rye, which was up more than a cent on covering by previous short sellers who found the market lacking in offerings. It appeared that liquidation of this grain had at least temporarily come to a halt.

With traders watching the war news intently activity was on a reduced scale. Cattle displayed strength in a quiet trade, moving up about a cent at times, while wheat scored fractional gains. Trade reports said the Commodity Credit Corporation obtained about 1,600,000 bushels of wheat last week at markets outside Chicago.

At the close wheat was 1/4-1/2 higher, September $1.43 1/2, oats were up 1/4-1/2, September 68 1/2, and rye was ahead 1 1/2-1 3/4, September 96 1/2-98 1/2.

AXIS SUB MENACE CUT BY BOMBINGS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Secretary Knox said today combat losses and Allied bombings of production centers undoubtedly were compelling the Germans to dig into their U-boat reserves in order to operate against Allied supply lines in the Atlantic.

This, Knox told his press conference, is even worse than the loss of the ships because there is no way to replace an experienced commander.

Knox recalled that when U-boat operations were at their height he had estimated the Germans had 400 to 500 submarines. This included, he said, many in reserve which were employed for training in the Baltic Sea.

The rate of destruction of one-a-day, he said, was believed to exceed the German rate of production.

Two copies of the Tax Budget as tentatively adopted for the Jasper Village School District, Fayette County, Ohio, are on file in the office of the clerk.

These are for public inspection, and a public hearing will be held at the office of the clerk of said school district on the 27th day of August, 1943, at 8 o'clock P. M.

JUNIOR BRANCH OF RED CROSS IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Largest Youth Organization In World in 33 Rooms Here Last Year

Fayette County schools will again participate in Junior Red Cross activities which is today the largest youth organization in the world, said W. J. Hilly, county superintendent of schools. The Junior Red Cross is doing a big job—a job both international and national in scope.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Earl Gidding, 32 classrooms in county schools last year subscribed to the Junior Red Cross periodical, which contained reports of national activities as well as suggestions for activities for the school children.

The 16,000,000 members of the national organization have already produced more than 3,000,000 comfort and recreation articles for soldiers and sailors in hospitals and camps. Over 500,000 garments for refugee children have been made.

Junior Red Cross workers also have made splints, stretchers, and first aid cabinets for civilian use. During last year 361,000 members passed the junior first aid course, 32,000 secured life saving and water safety certificates, and 1,000 first aid detachments were organized.

The American Junior Red Cross National Children's Fund also contributed large sums for war nurseries in England. Powdered milk for children of unoccupied France, and shoes for refugee children in Russia.

Other activities participated in by the organization were accident prevention, gift boxes, war on waste, nutrition, disaster preparedness, canteen and staff assistance corps.

Perhaps one of the most important activities, according to National Red Cross Chairman, Norman H. Davis, is the Red Cross Home Nursing course, which was taken by many thousands of Junior Red Cross members.

NEW AIR RAID SIREN TO BE GIVEN TESTS

Citizens Warned Test Is Strictly 'Experimental'

Tests of the new air raid siren now installed on the roof of the city building will be Wednesday evening at 6 P. M. Citizens are warned by Col. Rell G. Allen, secretary of the Fayette County Council of Civilian Defense, that the two blasts from the siren do not mean that the city is having an alert, but that they are merely experimental.

The tests are necessary to determine the volume of the sirens. Allen said and no interruption of activities is intended. There will be two signals of two minutes duration sounded at intervals of about three minutes. The first signal is the regulation first warning of an air raid and the second will be the sharp, staccato signal which indicates planes overhead.

From eight to ten men will be posted at various points throughout the city to check the effectiveness of the signals. The new siren is operated by electricity and has four horns each pointing in a different direction, attached to a common loudspeaker. Disk records of the signals will be played.

PEACHES RETAIL UP TO $7.25 HERE

Price This Year Said To Be New Record

Peaches are retailing at as high as $7.25 per basket in the local market and this fruit apparently comes from one of the nearby states.

Most of the peaches in the local market are also very high and apparently the fruit is moving much slower than when it was a normal price.

The peach crop is light this year and the present price is believed to be an all time "ceiling price" for the fruit.

Dear Bill:

I just couldn't sit home any longer— waiting for your letters, worrying, but doing so little to bring you home sooner.

You see I started in this week at the war plant. They're training me to be a drill press operator. And you can just wipe that grin off your face, you big goof. The foreman says I'll make a darn good one!

So here's a picture of me in my uniform. Remember how you used to wipe the flour smudges off my nose? Well, you ought to see me now—I'm a regular grease monkey!

I admit I was pretty scared the first day, until I got up nerve to really look the place over. I was afraid it would be like working in a dungeon—all dark and dingy! But it's not like that at all.

Why, the plant's as bright and cheery as our own kitchen. Even has that new fluorescent lighting!

I wish I could tell you what we're making. I can't—but I hope one of them may find its way to you someday—just when you need it most. So I'm sending my love with every one—and a prayer.

I'm not counting the minutes any longer, because I know you'll be back pretty soon.

So, darling

Oh, oh. There's the whistle now!

Today everybody's most important job is to help win the war. Our own first duty is to supply the electricity to drive the machines making war goods and to supply the light that enables eyes to see better and hands to work faster. Our second duty is to provide electricity for homes, schools, offices, and stores. We will continue to perform these duties to the best of our abilities.

Waste in War Is a Crime. Do Not Waste Electricity Just Because It Is Not Rationed.
